

The Charta der Vielfalt – a voluntary commitment to diversity management

The basic premise of diversity management is that valuing the diversity of employees serves companies' commercial success. The diversity of employees is actively encouraged in the context of HR strategy and organisational development.

This is where the Charta der Vielfalt comes in. It is a fundamental commitment to the economic benefit of diversity and to tolerance, fairness and appreciation in the world of work and in society. By signing, companies and organisations commit to respect all employees equally – regardless of age, ethnic origin and nationality, gender, religion and worldview, physical and mental ability, sexual orientation and social background. Federal Chancellor Olaf Scholz is the patron of the initiative. The Commissioner for the Federal Government for Migration, Refugees and Integration, State Minister Reem Alabali-Radovan, supports the initiative.

The Charta der Vielfalt initiative was converted into an association in January 2011, whose directors are Corina Christen and Franzi von Kempis. The association supports the establishment of diversity in the economy and in society. It intends in particular to win more companies and organisations for the principles of the Charta der Vielfalt, and to enable mutual learning and sharing of experience among the signatories, thus supporting them in implementing diversity management. The members of the association are: Accenture GmbH, Allianz Deutschland AG, BASF SE, Bayer AG, BMW AG, BNP Paribas S. A. Niederlassung Deutschland, Boehringer Ingelheim Pharma GmbH & Co. KG, BP Europa SE, Commerzbank AG, Clifford Chance Partnerschaft mbB, Daimler Truck AG, DATEV eG, Deutsche Bahn AG, Deutsche Bank AG, Deutsche Telekom AG, DHL Group, E.ON SE, ERGO Group AG, Ernst & Young GmbH, GILEAD Sciences GmbH, Hays AG, Henkel AG & Co KGaA, IKEA Deutschland GmbH & Co. The signatories of the Charta der Vielfalt

- Until the present day, about 6,000 organisations with a total of more than 15 million employees have signed the Charta der Vielfalt.
- In the meantime, 30 of the DAX 40 companies have signed the Charta der Vielfalt – as well as numerous German subsidiaries of well-known foreign companies.
- 15 percent of the signatories are from the public sector – they include nine of Germany's ten largest cities, 15 of Germany's federal states, 13 German Ministries, and 125 universities and institutes of higher education.
- The Charta der Vielfalt also meets with considerable interest from other stakeholders in society – e.g., organisations, associations, foundations, such as the Federal Confederation of German Employers' Associations, the German Red Cross and also the German Football Association.

Diversity is worthwhile – Facts and arguments

Benefits of diversity management

Sustainability: The topic of the workforce is becoming ever more crucial during times of demographic change and the associated shortage of skilled labour, and organisations need to react more creatively to these topics to react successfully in the long term to market challenges.

Retention of employees: Companies and organisations have a lower fluctuation rate because their staff feels understood and valued as individuals in their diversity.

Increased efficiency: Mixed teams often arrive at more creative and innovative solutions than homogeneous groups. Furthermore, appreciation and recognition make staff more motivated and more willing to participate actively.

Recruiting: An unbiased organisational culture is now an important criterion when choosing where to work, and thus a significant factor in the increasingly competitive search to find and retain qualified staff. It is often necessary to change recruiting processes to address the best talents on the market in new ways, to win them over and retain them in the organisation.

Image building: The public appreciates companies and organisations that think in an open-minded and pluralistic way.

Winning new customers on the German market: A heterogeneous workforce enables you to better manage your target groups, and improves contact with customers.

Opening up new markets abroad: Organisations that employ people with diverse backgrounds have greater opportunities to open up new markets in the age of globalisation.

Reducing risks: Actions for damages on the basis of the General Equal Treatment Act (AGG) are less likely if an organisation implements diversity management.
